AIRMAN & FAMILY READINESS CENTER

SPOUSE EMPLOYMENT

Updated March 2020

Spouses fulfill a unique role in our Air Force, providing support for the military member who has answered the call to serve.

Many spouses are in search of a career for financial reasons along with personal and professional fulfillment. As many families need two incomes to maintain their quality of life, spouse employment opportunities are increasingly crucial.

The Airman and Family Readiness Center is the 'one stop, career stop for spouses' and has employment assistance services to meet the challenges spouses face in training for and finding suitable positions in their chosen career fields.

SPOUSE PREFERENCE:

Military spouses are eligible to receive employment preference when PCSing with an active duty spouse (includes active National Guard and Reserve). This preference applies worldwide to DoD appropriated fund positions as well as to some nonappropriated fund positions.

Eligibility for Spouse Preference applies to:

- Spouses of active duty members on PCS orders (Spouse must relocate to new duty station)
- Spouses of 100% disabled retired or disabled separated military members
- Un-remarried widows or widowers of a military member killed on active duty
- Contact A&FRC for help writing your Federal Résumé
